REPORT MADE ON 340 DIVORCES BY COMMITTEE

Names of Attorneys and Witnesses in Cases Announced

TEETH IN DIVORCE BILL

Chas. Henry Smith Tells Committee He Is Now Preparing Bill To Introduce in Legislature

The principal business disposed of Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the special committee of seven of the Alexandria Bar Association named to probe the alleged divorce evil in this city was the submission of a partial report of the divorce cases gone over by the special sub-committee composed of J. Randall Caton, C. Keith Carlin and Howard W. Smith. The committee after hearing this report and considering a number of other matters adjourned till next Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock when it is expected the committee probably will submit a a complete report on the divorces granted in the corporation court since Judge Moncure assumed office.

Messrs. Caton and Smith went over a total of 340 cases, Mr. Caton 226 for a period extending from June, 1921 to January 1, 1922 and Mr. Smith went over 144 from a period extending from May 1, to November 1, 1920. Out of the cases investigated by Mr. Caton the name of Mrs. Mary L. Bagett he stated appeared 58 times as witness and the name of Mrs. Stella Bensel appeared twelve times as witness he said.

In cases investigated by Mr. Smith the name of Mrs. Mary L. Baggett he stated appeared 22 times as witness and the name of Mrs. Stella Bensel appeared 3 times a witness

According to the partial report filed the attorneys handling the cases examined, and the number of each follow:

Davis and Budwesky, 95; Richard B. Washington, 64; Charles Henry Smith, 30; Charles E. Corgan, 20; Smith and Woolls, 15; W. S. Snow, 11. H. Noel Garner, 11; Leo P. Harlow, 7; Louis N. Duffey, 7; R. W. Stump, 6; Nicol & Son, 6; G. L. Boothe, 5; F. G. Duvall, 5; J. L. Foster, Colonial Beach 5; T. M. Wampler, Washington. 3; F. P. Russell, 4; J. R. Caton and Son, 2; Carlin, Carlin and Hall, 2; Robert J. Thomas, 1; Charles Bendheim, 1; Crandall Mackey. Washington, 1; Oscar Thomas, 1; Neudecker and Ashford, Washington, 1; Edmund Hill, colored. 27; T. M. Watson, colored, 19 A. H. Collins, colored, 1.

When the meeting convened, which was presided over by Howard W. Smith chairman, Secretary Randall Caton read the minutes of the last meeting after which Judge Norton introduced a draft of the Hall divorce bill now pending in the legislature with a number of amendments among which were several designed to strengthen the bill and make it more difficult to obtain divorces in the State.

Among other things it is provided that the state be represented in all divorce cases and that no final decree shall be entered within a period of three months after the filing of the suit.

After some debate Judge Norton was authorized to go to Richmond Thursday and confer with Delegate Hall on this bill and see if the amendments could not be adopted. On Thursday there will be a hearing on the Hall bill before a special committee.

Gardner L. Boothe was named a committee of one to procure certain newspapers and have them before the committee in order that specific cases may be investigated by the committee.

Attorney Charles Henry Smith, member of the state legislature, was called on to give his views regarding the Hall bill.

Delegate Smith told the committee the bill was referred to the committee on courts and justices and said he would be glad to arrange for a hearing. The bill, however, he said, fails in its purpose as he added it does not provide for how it shall be done.

There is now in preparation a bill by him he said designed to change the whole divorce law and it will go a long way toward revolutionizing somewhat after the divorc laws of Colorado, as it creates the office of divorce proctor whose duty it shall be to investigate all divorce cases regardless of whether or not they are contested.

Mr. Smith said the Hall bill did not have enough teeth in it, and he added he expected to submit his bill shortly.

The following members of the committee were present: Howard W. Smith, chairman; Judge J. K. M. Norton, Judge L. C. Barley, Judge C. E. Nicol, C. Keith Carlin, Gardner L. Boothe, J. Randall Caton.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

Washington, Feb. 6.—Extreme danger to the nation exists in the tentative plan of members of Congress to make a material reduction in the personnel of the navy, according to high naval officers who are competent to judge the situation. They fear, and present strong arguments to prove their conclusions, that Congress may take a wrong view of the arms conference and its reductions as a reason for reducing the authorized personnel of the navy to an extent whereby the five-Power naval treaty could not be manned.

Figures to prove the conclusions of the naval officers are not looking. The navy now has about 10,000 enlisted men and a few more than 6,000 officers, including the various staff as well as line officers. This number is not, in the judgment of naval experts, sufficient to man efficiently the force of ships authorized under the naval treaty.

The general staff of the navy is now at work figuring on the minimum number of men to man the ships authorized in the treaty and although definite figures have not been compiled, the experts already have enough data to know that in the neighborhood of 130,000 officers and men will be required.

To President Harding today fell the honor of closing the conference on the Limitation of Armaments and Pacific and Far Eastern questions which he so auspiciously started. After the delegates formally affixed their signatures to the various treaties the President thanked them on behalf of the government of the United States and urged them, as representatives of their nations, on to further acts to bring about the gradual limitation of the armaments of the world to a point where offensive warfare will be impossible.

Having by choice occupied a back seat since the beginning of the conference, the President assented to the request that he deliver the farewell address to the delegates and congratulated them on the work in behalf of peace which they accomplished.

While the conference has not accomplished everything it started in to do, nevertheless, unbiased observers must admit that it has been fruitful of an immense amount of success from every standpoint. Not only have the nations entered into a solemn pact to reduce their navies and relieve the world and weary taxpayers of the nations involved of the enormous expense and war threat of naval armament, but they have reached a just and fair solution of the questions of the Far East, each of which contained the menace of war.

A supplement to the four-Pacific treaty designed to remove the home land of Japan from the scope of the treaty has been adopted by the Arms Conference. The United States, Great Britain, Japan and France have agreed to the supplement and it will be incorporated in the treaty when it is sent to the Senate for ratification. This supplement is expected to remove many of the objections to the four-Power treaty and will make certain its ratification, it is believed. The supplement comes as a result of a statement made by President Harding some time ago to the

REPORT MADE ON RUBBER TIRE CO

Commissioner Caton Recommends Stockholders Pay Sixty Per Cent Report

If This is Done Dividend of Forty Per cent Could be Immediately Declared Says Report

In the corporation court J. Randall Caton, special commissioner, has just submitted his report in the chancery suit of Winslow H. Randolph against Washington Tire and Rubber Corporation.

It is set forth in his report that the sum of $11,530 has been paid in cash on account of stock subscriptions, and eliminating the money paid out for the purchase of tires and tubes, there has been paid the sum of $6,970.87.

The report sets forth that the expenses are approximately sixty per cent of the total paid in on account of stock subscriptions. It also sets forth that it would be manifestly inequitable to make a distribution of the funds on hand among the stockholders of record when there are a great many stockholders of record who have paid considerably less than sixty per cent of the amount subscribed for by them. Continuing the report says: "It seems to your commissioner that all stockholders should bear equally the burden of the expense and, therefore, we recommend that the receiver be directed to require all stockholders to pay to the court on account of their stock an amount equal to sixty per cent of the stock subscribed for." Continuing the report says: "If this is done the court could immediately enter an order directing the receiver to make a dividend of forty per cent. at this time to all stockholders who have paid in full."

TWO HELD AS SUSPECTS IN TAYLOR MURDER

SEEK DRUG PEDDLER

Woman's Pink Silk Nightdress is Reported Missing From Taylor's Room In Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Feb. 6.—A motion picture actor and a cameraman were brought to the Los Angeles county jail here last night for questioning as to their possible knowledge of clues to the murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director.

The make up was still on the actor's face when he arrived at the jail, indicating officers stated, that the deputy sheriffs who had brought him in were in great haste to learn his story.

The men were located at a motion picture studio in the Hollywood district of Los Angeles, it was stated.

After they had been questioned separately for two hours the officers started back to Hollywood with the actor, it was stated.

The trip back to Hollywood, it was announced, was to give the actor an opportunity to make good his declaration to the deputies that if they would escort him there he could account for his movements last Wednesday night, the night Taylor was slain.

At that time, it was said, the cameraman was still held in jail.

Another angle was the story told by an associate of the dead director that a former employe had been heard to exclaim when he heard of the slaying, "Bill Taylor got what he deserved."

The investigation showed, the police said, that this man had been employed by the Famous Players-Laskky concern, working under Taylor in a minor capacity.

One day he was drunk when he went on duty. Taylor ordered him removed from the place. The next day the man returned, only to find an order from Taylor that he should not be admitted.

The police said they had begun a search for him.

Search for a drug peddler, upon whose trail the police said they were "getting warmer," and the absence of a woman's silken night dress, said by Henry Peavey, colored houseman, to be missing from the apartments of Taylor, were the other principal developments of the day in the search for his slayer.

The police were reticent as to the details concerning their search for the man, a peddler who was believed to have sought patrons for his contraband drugs among the employes of motion picture studios, but they intimated their belief he had attempted to make a delivery through Taylor to an actress who found it difficult to make her purchases in person.

The exact importance of the missing night dress, which was pink, was not made plain. Peavey, however, was firm in his declaration that it had a regular place in Taylor's apartments and equally firm in his assertions that since his employer was slain he had been unable to find it.

Checking of the various angles of the case among members of the motion picture colony and other friends and acquaintances of Taylor almost invariably led to some mention of Sand's name, according to detectives.

Police Commissioners

Will Elect Policeman Tonight and Transact Other Business

There will be a special meeting of the board of police commissioners at 7 o'clock tonight in the office of Mayor Duncan at which time a policeman will be elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Policeman Henry Sisson.

All other police business pending will be considered at this meeting which will take the place of the regular monthly meeting scheduled to be held February 18. All candidates for policemen are requested to appear at this meeting.

ABLE ADDRESS

Representative Oliver of Alabama Speaks at Men's Meeting

An able and interesting address was delivered before a largely attended men's meeting in the Westminster building by Representative W. B. Oliver of Alabama, who is representative from the sixth district of that state. The speaker emphasized the fundamental principals on which our government is founded, the sacredness of the home and also the observance of the laws of the country. Throughout the speaker was given close attention by the audience.

AT RICHMOND LEGISLATION

House Proceedings

The House was called to order at 11:05 o'clock Saturday morning, and prayer was offered by Rev. Fred R. Chenault, pastor of Broad Street M. E. Church, South. Reading of the journal was dispensed with on motion of Delegate Page, of Norfolk. Senate communications and reports of House committees were read.

Clerk Williams read letters from the Kiwanis Clubs, of Portsmouth, Lynchburg and other cities, urging the passage of the bill creating the State Port Commission.

Senate Bill, No. 40, making the State laws relative to the shooting of wild waterfowl correspond with the Federal laws, was passed by a vote of 57 to 0.

Senate Bill, No. 66, providing for the payment of bounties for the killing of certain predatory birds and animals, was passed by a vote of 60 to 0.

Senate Bill, No. 78, prohibiting the baiting of wild turkeys for the purpose of killing or capturing the same, was passed by a vote of 62 to 0.

House Bill, No. 54, to annex to the County of Chesterfield a part of the County of Henrico, was advanced to engrossment.

Local House Bills, Nos. 52, 66, 89, 91, 122, 125, 127, 131, 134, 135, 145, 146, 147 and 155 were passed enbloc by a vote of 59 to 0.

Uncontested House Bills, Nos. 48, 61, 63, 64, 68, 72, 76, 79, 82 and 83 were passed enbloc by a vote of 60 to 0.

House bills on their third reading were taken up and passed as follows:

No. 42, reducing the landlord's lien from twelve to six months; vote 58 to 2.

No. 46 to permit a man to marry his step-daughter; vote 54 to 3.

No. 47, raising the maximum penalty for wilful maiming from ten to twenty years; vote 54 to 3.

No. 77, providing for the placing of heirs' names on the will book instead of the deed book; vote 54 to 0.

House Bill No. 128 and House Bill No. 107 were advanced to engrossment.

House Bill, Nos. 117 and 118, providing for the separation of the deaf and dumb departments of the school at Staunton, and providing for a commission to establish a school for the blind were referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

On motion of Delegate Hall, of Loudoun, the House adjourned at 1.05 P. M., to meet Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Senate Proceedings

A communication was received from the Chamber of Commerce, of Lynchburg, in which the report of the Hampton Roads Development Commission was commended and approved.

The "zoning" bill, which empowers the cities and towns of the State to prescribe and fix the districts for business, manufacturing and residences, was called up on its engrossment. The bill simply vests councils and governing bodies with the right to do this. Senator Russell, of Campbell, proposed an amendment whereby cities of 30,000 and less should be exempted. This was for the benefit of the city of Lynchburg.

Senators Mills and Paul opposed the amendment and it was rejected by a vote of 17 to 4. The bill was then engrossed.

Senate bills on first and second readings and advanced on the calendar, the purpose being to have the measures in position for consideration and disposition for communication to the House for concurrence.

St. Paul's Activities

Yesterday morning Rev. P. F. Hall in St. Paul's Church preached in reference to the divorce question. In the afternoon 8 persons were baptized. At night the organizations of the Parish turned out in force for the annual guild service and reports were made by 30 societies. Their banners placed in the chancel gave a pleasing variety of color. The healing service on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock will be preceded by the Holy Communion at 10.30 a. m.

Costume Ball Postponed

Auxiliary Board of Hospital Gives Elks' Hall to American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars

The Valentine Costume Ball to be given by the Auxiliary Board of the Alexandria Hospital has been postponed from February 10, to Wednesday, February 15, in order that the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign War Bazaar, taking place this week in the Elks' Hall, might continue on Friday night.

Tickets already sold will be good for the date of postponement, and the same Whalen's Orchestra will furnish the music.

Many attractive plans are being made by the committee, and costumed girls will have candy, confetti, etc. for sale. It is predicted that this will be one of the most interesting of the social events of the season.

Bible Thought for Today

Remove far from me vanity and lies: give me neither poverty nor riches: feed me with food convenient for me.—Proverbs 30:8.

CARDINAL RATTI IS ELECTED NEW PONTIFF

Election Comes on Eleventh Ballot This Morning at 11.30 O'clock

POPE PIUS XI

Is Understood to Favor Reconciliation Between the Vatican and the State.

Rome, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was today elected Pope of the Roman Catholic Church, on the seventh ballot, He is an Italian and is understood to favor reconciliation between the Vatican and the state.

Throughout the morning great crowds had waited expectantly in St. Peter's square. As the noon hour drew near all eyes were strained upon the Sistine chapel chimney. Shortly after 11.30 o'clock a thin wisp of smoke emerged from the chimney. There was a hush, for the general expectation was that it would turn to an oily black, the signal of no election. On the contrary it continued a light gray.

Immediately a great shout went up and the crowd made a rush forward to get as close as possible to the balcony upon which it is the ancient custom for the new pontiff to appear and bless the assembled multitude.

Announcement was made that the new pontiff had chosen the name of Pius XI, and he will be known by this title so long as he occupies the chair of St. Peter's. Each cardinal in the conclave is supposed to have chosen in his own mind the name he will be officially known by, so that, in the event of election, he can make it known at once.

It is customary, immediately after the announcement of an election for three cardinals to lead the new sovereign Pontiff into the robing room, adjacent to the Sistine Chapel, where three sets of papal robes are laid out. One is of large size, one medium and one is small. The variations are made so that no matter what the stature of the new sovereign Pontiff, he will find the robes to fit him.

In olden times there were elaborate rites and ceremonies through which the new Pope was conducted following his elevation to the mightiest and holiest office of the Roman Church. But of these the only that remains is the coronation.

The new Pontiff will be crowned within the next week, and cardinals now enroute for Rome, who were unable to get here in time for the conclave election, will be at hand for the elaborate coronation rites.

APHASIA VICTIM

H. R. Sillex Who Was Identified Here Returns to Connecticut Home

Henry Robert Sillex, of Greenwich, Conn., who January 16 found himself in this city unable to tell his name, and who remained three days at the Alexandria Hospital without knowing his name till he was identified by J. Herbert Taylor, of this city chief of the identification bureau of the Navy Department, this afternoon left for his home. He was accompanied by his father E. R. Sillex. His father came here a few days after his son was identified and carried his son to the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington where he has been under treatment. Mr. Sillex says his son has greatly improved and before leaving he and his son came over to Alexandria.

U. D. C. CARD PARTY AND DANCE TO BE GIVEN MONDAY, FEB. 13

The card party and dance to be given by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, will take place on Monday evening, Feb. 13. The committee regrets that the dates heretofore set for this affair have had to be changed so often but has deemed it necessary, so as not to conflict with other entertainments happening on the previously selected dates. On account of the large number of tickets already sold, it has been found necessary also to change the place in which this affair was to have been held ,from Lee Camp Hall, to Odd Fellows Hall on North Columbus Street, so as to give those dancing a larger floor space. Good music is promised for this occasion, and those expecting to play cards are advised to reserve their tables early, which may be done by communicating with Mrs. Lawrence Perry, phone 643.

VIRGINIA NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Fredericksburg—Gigantic ice floes released from the upper reaches of the Rappahannock River by the warm spell descended down stream. The big movement of ice tore the steel tanker No. 7, of the Standard Oil Company from her moorings and carried her against the lumber barge, "Howard Neff," of Philadelphia, which was docked a little further down the river.

Portsmouth—The city police and those of Norfolk County were making a determined effort last night to put an end to violence in connection with the traction strike here. The special force of the county was augmented yesterday by Judge Coleman in the Circuit Court, when, on the petition of a delegation representing the Westhaven Civic League, he appointed six officers for duty at night in that community. City policemen were riding the cars last night within the city At the city line they were boarded by countyy officers.

Hopewell—One man was killed and two others seriously injured last night when an oil truck driven by E. S. Leary, of Brandon, collided with a wagon driven by a negro at the intersection of Avenue A and Twenty-third Street, Camp Lee. On the truck with the driver were Joseph Pines and Eddie Jones, two negroes, Jones being killed instantly. Leary and Pines were both seriously injured.

Suffolk—Mrs. J. B. Hughes, attached to the Smith's shows, now wintering in West Suffolk, sustained dreadful burns last night, and lies in a critical condition at Lakeview Hospital. Mrs. Hughes was doing some washing out of doors near the camp. She stood too near the blaze, which, swept by a sudden gust of wind, ignited the woman's clothing, and her frantic screams for help so frightened the two or three people who heard that they fled from her.

Lynchburg—With ten gallons of corn liquor, most of it done up in pint bottles and wrapped ready for a weekend trade, the soft drink establishment belonging to John Hicks 908 Fifth Street, was raided Friday night by the police, and Hicks was arrested under the charge of violating the State prohibition law.

Staunton—Concluding a two-day hearing in the Circuit Court, a jury today returned a verdict of guilty against M. C. McKay, alleged head of a bootleg ring operating out of Roanoke, and his punishment was fixed at two and one half years in the State Penitentiary. McKay, accompanied by two men and two women traveling in two automobiles carrying 216 gallons of liquor, were captured by officers, near Middlebrook, January 12.

Roanoke—Employment conditions in Roanoke are critical, according to information obtained from James B. Newton, superintendent of the poor. Mr. Newton declared that if work did not pick up in this city within the next few weeks, the soup line will have to be established in this city. Plans are now on foot for the establishment of a community chest through which the families in destitute circumstances will be furnished with food and clothing.

DEGREE WORK IS CONFERRED

Court 54 Catholic Daughters of America Pay Visit to District

Ceremonies Conducted by Mrs. M. R. O'Sullivan, Grand Regent, and Staff of Officers

Members of Court No. 54, Catholic Daughters of America, yesterday afternoon paid a visit to District of Columbia Court No. 212, of Washington, and Mrs. M. R. O'Sullivan, grand regent, and staff of officers conferred the degrees of the order on a large class of candidates. This was followed by the installation of officers which was conducted by Miss Agnes Power, state regent for Maryland.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies there was a banquet which was greatly enjoyed.

Among those in attendance were Mgr. Thomas, of St. Patrick's Church, Washington, Rev. Dr. Hafey, vice chancellor, representing Archbishop Curley, Baltimore; Rev. Eugene A. Hannon, Rev. Father Gale, Holy Trinity Church, Washington, Rev. Father Cartwright and McNamara, of St. Patrick's Church, Washington, John Shiel, district deputy K. of C. of Washington, James Sullivan, Miss Agnes Power, Miss Lorton, state secretary and visitors from New York, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Jonesboro, Pa., Hagerstown, Md., Miami, Fla. and other places.

WILSON FOUNDATION

Those interested in the Woodrow Wilson Foundation will hold a public meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the rooms of the chamber of commerce. Every person interested in the project, both men and women, are urged to attend this meeting. As previously stated in these columns, Alexandria's allotment is $1,000 and it is hoped to raise the amount before long

UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IN U. S. BETTER

Virginia and Maryland Compare Favorably With Rest of Country

RICHMOND RATE HIGH

Average of Nation is Four and Two Tenth Per Cent With 63,000 More Employees.

Washington, Feb. 6.—While there is a great deal of unemployment reported to the Government in the cities and towns of Maryland and the Virginias, the industrial wage-drawing situation in these States, save for the coal strike regions, compares favorably with the rest of the country. The statistics are given in a monthly survey for January, made public last night by the Department of Labor.

The department's special agents in 65 principal industrial centers reported on 1,428 firms, each usually employing more than 500 workers, or a total of 1,600,000 wage-earners. On January 31 these firms had 63,400 more employes on their payrolls than on December 31, an increase of 4.2 per cent., which general average is less than Baltimore's percentage of increase in employment for the month. Industries which showed a decrease are textiles, iron and steel, lumber, stone, clay and glass, tobacco and their products and railroad shops.

Of the 65 industrial centers 40 reported employment increases during January over December. Baltimore had a 4.9 per cent, increase. Richmond (Va.) was among 25 cities reporting employment decreases. Richmond's decrease was 2.6 per cent. The department announced that "employment conditions fail to give any indication of the substantial improvement in business activities predicted for January."

The department's figures show a downward trend in business activities the country over. The report says: "Textiles and iron and steel, which have been on the upward swing for some months past, show a downward tendency in employment for the past 30 days. Railroad repair shops continue to decrease their forces. Increase in employment in metal products other than iron and steel and miscellaneous industries is encouraging. Reports from 231 of the principal centers show no general improvement in employment conditions.

Industry is hardly holding the gains made during the past four months, and is not, therefore, absorbing any of the workers released from seasonal activities and the unemployed caused by the usual climatic conditions of this season of the year. The feeling that there will be a decided change for the better by early spring is manifested by every section of the country, and seems to be based on real evidence of prosperity and not mere optimism."

The actual increase of employment in Baltimore in January over the preceding months for the firms reported was 1,222. In Richmond the decrease was 290.

In Baltimore 211 industrial concerns employing usually less than 500 report employment as follows: December 15, 30,113; January 15, 30,052; net decrease, 61. A summary for Maryland, the District of Columbia and the Virginias follows:

"Maryland, general: While there is a slight decrease shown in the smaller firms, Baltimore apparently has at least held its own for the last month. Railroad shops are at a very low point of employment. Textiles continue to show a slight decrease. This is also true of iron and steel, lumber and its manufactures, leather and its finished products, while chemicals, stone, clay and glass products, metals ad metal products, other than iron and steel, show slight decreases employment for the month, but not enough to be serious. Fertilizers, foundry work, tin specialties, sheet metal, structural iron and boxes continue dull. There is but litle change in the unemployment situation, which continues serious both as regards skilled and unskilled labor.

"District of Columbia, Washington: A 20 per cent. increase in unemployment since the peak last January and is steadily increasing in all lines, clerical, mercantile, skilled and unskilled labor. Government departments have reduced their clerical forces, and this, in conjunction with the general business depression, has resulted in decreasing opportunities for work. Building operations have slowed up with several of the operators laying off their men for 60 or 90 days. Auto shops report extreme dullness.

Richmond—Clothiers from virtually all the South's great cities will attend the semiannual convention of the Virginia Retail Clothiers' and Furnishers' Association, in Murphy's Hotel today and Tuesday. It is anticipated the most representative gathering of merchants ever before assembled will attend the convention.

CITY PUBLICITY

We published in Saturday's Gazette a letter from Denver, Colorado, asking for descriptive pamphlets or books, concerning Alexandria. The writer is willing to pay for same, which is an evidence of sincerity of purpose. We have heretofore called the attention of our Chamber of Commerce to this important matter, and understand they have something of the sort in preparation. We suggest that they take the name and address of the party for their files. In the meantime we have turned the letter over to our local booksellers.

MORE PLAYGROUNDS

When so conservative and unsentimental a citizen as our friend Feldtkeller, superintendent of the Alexandria Lighting Company, selects for an interview on Greater Alexandria, the subject of children's playgrounds, there must be something in it. His arguments are, in our opinion, substantial and unanswerable. His suggestions as to measures to be adopted are worthy of serious consideration by every reader of the Gazette. If these suggestions, which are both practical and practicable, are adopted, that will settle one of the slogans at our masthead! Why not act on them and thus have more playgrounds for Alexandria's children? That is, do it and do it now!

RICHMOND FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond has just issued its preliminary report of operations for 1921. It has collected more than 39 million checks, amounting to $8,620,000,000. It has made about 25,000 telegraphic transfers of funds, amounting to over a billion dollars. It has redeemed 3,263,000 coupons from U. S. securities, amounting to nearly 22 million dollars. It has shipped or delivered to banks in the fifth federal reserve district currency and coin amounting to nearly 245 million dollars.

The net profits for the year 1920 were $5,238,505.96; and for 1921 were $4,393,627.28. Out of these profits were paid dividends amounting to about $322,000 in 1921, and $293,000 in 1920.

The clearings for the past four years have been as follows: for 1918, about seven billion dollars; for 1919, about nine billions; for 1920, about eleven billions; and for 1921 nearly nine billions.

The great Federal Reserve Bank system, established by the Wilson Administration, has fully justified itself by its marvelous success, and is one of the crowning achievements of the Democratic Party. In our own mind there is no doubt that on more than one occasion it has been the means of warding off panics that would have otherwise been unavoidable.

VOICING THEIR THANKS

One of the services undertaken in Europe by the Junior American Red Cross has been that of financing scholarships for worthy children, who through poverty brought on by the war are not able to complete their education without such assistance. From these countries have come letters to the American Red Cross voicing gratitude for what has been done for these children. Most of these letters are written by the children themselves. They all read very much like this one written by a French boy.

"Thanks to my little American benefactors I can again this year go on with studies. I will never forget what I owe them and should be grateful to you if you would tell them in my behalf how tremendously indebted I am to them, I can only repay them by working hard in order to get a good position and in so doing show them that a little French boy is grateful.

"I have entered the 4th grade and I will try to win a good place.

"In addition to Latin, I am studying Greek; geometry has been added to mathematics; I continue the study of English language, hoping that one day I will meet, either in my country or in theirs, one of my dear benefactors. On such a day I shall be happy to be able to tell them in their own language 'your sacrifices have not been in vain, what I am today I owe to you' and I hope they may be very proud of me.

"Soon perhaps, dear madam, I may have the happiness to see you; if I had an opportunity to go to Paris, I would ask m ymother to take me to your office (she herself would be very glad to make your acquaintance) and then I could express to you all my appreciation and gratitude, as well as my affection.

"Awaiting this so much desired pleasure, I beg you, dear madam, to believe me always your little obliged friend who loves you very much and kisses you with all his heart."

A New Republic's First Wireless

Albania, one of southern Europe's new republics which sprang up after the World War, is in direct communication with the capital cities of Europe for the first time in all the history of that little country. Announcement to this effect has just reached Red Cross National Headquarters in a letter from Prof. L. M. Heron, of Washington, D. C., who was sent to Albania by the Junior American Red Cross to take charge of the first vocational school ever opened in Albania. This school, financed by the Junior American Red Cross, is equipped with modern tools and machinery. The thirty boys who constitute the first class in elementary science and manual training had to study English because there are no words in the Albanian tongue in which to express the technical terms necessary in modern manual instruction. The few crude and antiquated tools possessed by the Albanians are wholly unlike those used in the school.

The trade school aroused nation wide interest in Albania, but the climax of enthusiasm came a few days ago when it became known that Prof. Heron had communicated by wireless with Paris and other European capitals. In the schoolyard, the American tacher had erctd a high pole with a cross arm from which dangled the wires that were connected with powerful outfit which Prof. Heron took with him to Albania in order that he might put the city of Tirana in communication with the outside world. The Prime Minister and half a dozen members of the parliament eagerly watched Prof. Hron send this message, the first wireless ever sent out of their country. "Albania sends greetings to the world as the youngest republic."

The Albanian government is now securing estimates on the cost of a wireless station of its own that will communicate with frontier stations and also with the Eiffel Tower. The Junior American Red Cross vocational school is giving to ancient Albania much more than a technical training for the youth of the country; it is opening the way for a modern ized republic.

Helping The Sick And the Needy

In the St. Elizabeth's and the Methodist Hospitals at Hutchinson, Kas., there is a room known as the "Junior Red Cross Room." These rooms have been leased for a period of 99 years and the cost of their maintenance is being largely defrayed by the girls and boys of the Junior American Red Cross.

These rooms in the hospitals are free to school children of Reno Co., Kansas, under 16 years of age who need financial aid, but not for persons who would be a public charge. It is estimated that the total value of the work done in these two hospital wards for children up to the first of last November, if paid for at the regular rate would amount to $2,006.70.

At the Junior Red Cross room in the Methodist Hospital 49 patients have been cared for from October 27, 1919, to November 1, 1921. At St. Elizabeth's Hospital, ten Junior patients have been cared for in the same period of time.

"Were you a bright boy at school?" "Very," replied Senator Sorghum. "I was not very strong for text books but I was a wonder at thinking up excuses for not being able to answer some of the questions put to me."—Washington Star.

ANCESTRY OF GOV. TRINKLE

Forbears of Governor Were Early Citizens of Old Dominion

Great Love For Soil and Deeply Rooted Religious Tendencies Are Main Characteristics

(By DR. KATE WALLER BARRETT)
State Regent D. A. R.

As I sat in the Capitol on February 1 and witnessed the very dignified and impressive ceremony of inducting into office Governor E. Lee Trinkle, my mind went back in retrospect to Governor Trinkle's birthplace, the beautiful town of Wytheville, where the heights of the Alleghanies stand sentinel, and below stretches the quiet beauty of Happy Valley. Few towns of its size have played a more important part than Wytheville in the development of the country. From Colonial days it was the stopping place for the earliest settlers as they passed on into Tennessee. It was then known as "Evansham," for it was not until 1838 that its name was changed to Wytheville, in honor of that great constructive mind, George Wythe.

Long before either Evansham or Wytheville were dreamed of, forbears of Gov. Trinkle had already arrived and taken root in the fertile soil of Southwestern Virginia and were counted among its most representative and public-spirited citizens. Indeed, they were the soul and directing spirit of its being, and if it had not been for their interest in civic matters there would never have been a Wytheville, and Virginia might have been robbed of the many illustrious men and women who have claimed Wytheville as their birthplace.

Early in 1772, there came to the vicinity of what is now Wytheville, a family by the name of Zimmerman. Like all the forbears of Governor Trinkle the Zimmerman's had a great land hunger and purchased large tracts. But theirs was no selfish thought of personal aggrandizements alone. From the first, the thought of development was foremost in their minds. Christopher Zimmerman, the great grandfather of Governor Trinkle on his mother's side, in 1790, donated ninety acres of land for a courthouse and town site for Wythe County. The sessions of the court were held in the "Big Room" of the Zimmerman house until the courthouse could be built. Only the kitchen and barn were reserved for family use. The plot was laid off into town lots by a young Welsh surveyor, John Evans, for whom the town was named. Evansham. From this courthouse the movement was launched for a revision of the Code to extend the right of suffrage to land owners. Thus the progressive spirit displayed by Governor Trinkle in his inaugural address found its foundation head in the ideals and accomplishments of his ancestors.

But Governor Trinkle's ancestors on the Trinkle side are of even more ancient origin than the Zimmermans. They came to this country in 1738 on the "Charming Nancy," settling first in Lancaster County, Pa., and, later moving to Pulaski County, they immediately associated themselves with forward movements, founding the Presbyteriaon Church at New Dublin, many years before the Revolution. These families, who all came from the Palatine in common with many of the German and Swiss families of those days, removed South and settled in Virginia.

Governor Trinkle's family on the maternal side goes back even further. In American history the Sextons were loyal supporters of the crown in the time of Henry VIII., and were given, by him, a large estate in Limerick, Ireland. Several of the family served as Mayors of Limerick. George Sexton, the Governor's maternal ancestor, came to America in 1662, and settled in Connecticut. His eldest son, Charles, purchased a farm of 550 acres on Long Island, and his son, Joseph, moved to Virginia and became the ancestor of Governor Trinkle. Two characteristics stand out conspicuously in the ancestors of Virginia's Governor; a love of the soil and a deep religious tendency. Wher ever one of the name appears you always read of their religious beliefs and their efforts to further the interests of the church. Their land hunger is also as characteristic, it being a tradition that one of them added a farm a year to his holdings. We, in Virginia, are found of family history, and when we are so fortunate as to have as Governor Trinkle, one who represents in himself the traits and characteristics that we love to honor, it is of no small moment to be able to trace these characteristics back to an ancestry which justifies its fruition in a man who is so outstanding example of the best of the present generation. For 250 years and more, Governor Trinkle's forbears have helped to develop the civilization which we today inherit, and is it too much for us to hope that the lengthening shadow of his administration as Governor of the whole Commonwealth, will reach to unborn generations 250 years hence?

Man is a roadhouse at which the spirts of his ancestors stop to rest a while on their way to being his descendants. No truer definition of heredity than this could be given. Methink the old Sextons, Zimmermans, Trollingers and Trinkles will be strengethened and encouraged to even greater efforts in future generations by their sojourn in the Governor's Mansion.

The Governor's Mansion is a delightful and historic building, but, from the point of comfort and elegance is inferior to the home the Trinkle's own in Wytheville, situated across the alley from the home of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. But Wytheville's loss will be Richmond's gain, for Mrs. Trinkle will prove a distinst addition to the cultured a nd social life of Richmond. Reared in the delightful surroundings ot the far South, an accomplished musician, a devoted mother, she stands as an interpretation of the Southern ideals. For many years she has been a D. A. R., tracing her ancestry to Colonel James Ball, of Revolutionary fame Glorious Virginia! Its past, wrought into the present, for the rise of the future, this is the lesson and moral to be drawn from our Governor's family tree.

"We Daughters" may be forgiven, I hope, if we attach a great deal of importance to genealogy. It is in no spirit of personel vanity. but rather that we may impress the heart of the rising generation with a due regard for those fundamental virtues which are the corner stone of the republic, and a country which honors heroes, is never lacking in heroes, is altrisum. We daughters believe that in honoring ancestry, we stimulate patriotism, and develop worthy followers of those who have this glorious America. This has been the thought in my mind as I have gathered up the few facts about the ancestors of your Govrnor. Not a glory but to inspire.

John Henry was about as careful of a quarter as a man could be. He married a widow worth $20,000. Shortly after the ceremony an old friend met him.

"Allow me," he said, "to congratulate you. I believe your wedding was worth a clear $20,000 to you."

"No," replied John Henry, "not quite so much."

"Indeed, I thought it was every penny of it."

"Oh no," said the benedict, "I had to pay sixteen dollars for the ring."—The Christian Intelligencer and Mission Field.—(New York).

HOME BEAUTIFUL

By DOROTHY EMMEL WALSH.

Utilizing Drapery Bands as Mirror Ropes.

A charming bedroom I saw recently was decorated in mauve and green. The walls were light green, the draperies at windows, dressing table and bed were of mauve colored silk banded in the same material with pipings of green.

The color scheme was not particularly unusual. The window hangings were most simple, straight with shirred bandings at their edgings, and the bedspread consisted only of three lengths of the silk with the bands placed on the seams where they were joined and around the spread's outer edge.

Somehow, however, the room had an individuality of its own. This was due partially to the quaint colored bottles on the dressing table, to the funny old time prints on the wall and also to a few original touches in the arrangement of the dressing table.

The artist has sketched the top of this article and has shown you the novel way in which the mirror is hung above it. The same bandings as are used on the draperies throughout the room, are fortified with picture wire and made to do service in place of the customary silk ropes and tassels. It is an excellent plan, as they fit better into the general scheme and make the mirror seem more a part of the dresser.

Cheerful Rooms Make Happy Youngsters.

Do not say to yourself when decorating Young Hopeful's room: "He is only a child, we need not take much thought of the furnishings."

Because youth is so impressionable it is important that its surroundings be pleasing. Its first idea of this old planet should be that it is a happy place on which to have alighted, and how can they think that when the things associated with their daily lives are old and shabby, made up of odds and ends which will "do for the children's room"?

I realize that in many a home odds and ends from the living room must find places elsewhere when new articles are bought for that important part of the home. I am not urging you to only consider new things for the children's room, but a pot of paint in happy hue will work wonders in bringing odds and ends into harmony.

There are many small touches which may be added which will also go far toward instilling an optimistic point of view in Young Hopeful's mind. The illustration shows, for instance, a strip of wallpaper which depicts scenes from Mother Goose. This paper may be bought and tacked onto the wall instead of pictures. What youthful mind could conjure any but optimistic visions with as dear friends as "Tom, Tom the Piper's Son" and "Little Boy Blue" so near?

GOOD HEALTH OF CHILDREN FROM RICH BLOOD

Health, Strength and Vigor Built Up By Gude's Pepto-Mangan

You see one child strong and robust; another child pale and thin. One eats practically the same foods and takes the same exercise as the other. What is the difference? Nearly always it's a difference in the quality of the blood The strong child has rich, red blood and plenty of it. You love to see him eat so heartily. If your child is thin and weak, give him Gude's Pepto-Mangan to build up the blood and see the difference between a sickly, unhappy childhood and a bouncing, healthy childhood.

Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's in liquid or tablet form. Be sure it's the genuine. Advertisement.

THE RULING PASSION

He owned a handsome touring car,
To ride in it was heaven.
He ran across some broken glass—
Bill $14.97.

He took some friends out for a ride
'Twas good to be alive.
The carbureter threw a fit—
Bill $20.85.
He started on a little tour,
The finest sort of fun,
He stopped too quick and stripped his gears—
Bill $90.51.

He took his wife downtown to shop,
To save carfare was great;
He jammed into one lamp post,
Bill $268.
He spent about all that he had,
And then in anguish cried:
"I'll put a mortgage on the house
And take just one more ride."

CARING FOR A FAMILY OF TEN IS MADE EASY

Mrs. W. H. Stallings of Norfolk Gains Twenty Pounds Taking Tanlac and Feels Fine and Strong All The Time.

Pain In Side and Indigestion Have Disappeared, She Sleeps Like a Child and Eats Anything on Table.

"Although I have a family of ten I am able to do all my house work now and feel good all the time. I certainly ought to be grateful to Tanlac, because when I began taking it I felt so weak and worn out I could hardly drag himself around. My troubles started about eighteen months ago with a slight pain in my side which gradually grew worse until it hurt me day and night. I lost by appetite and my stomach became so disordered that everything I ate disagreed with me. "I feel perfectly well now, eat heartily of anything I want, never have a sign of indigestion and sleep eight or nine hours every night without waking once. The pain in my side has disappeared too, and I have gained twenty pounds in weight. In a short time Tanlac made me feel like an entirely different person."

The above remarkable statement was made by Mrs. W. H. Stallings, 14 Franklin St., South Norfolk, Va.

OUR HOME HOSPITAL

Editor "Gazette:"—

In the last few weeks some one has been circulating the report by means of anonymous letters and other fruitful sources, that the Alexandria Hospital has refused admission to the poor and sick, and has asked when emergency cases were brought to the door who would be responsible for their bills. We have never, on any occasion, refused help to any emergency case, poor or rich, and with our entire force, are always ready to do anything in our power to help any one who meets with accident, at any time of the day or night. Every institution has to be run on a business basis, and it takes 75 per cent more to take care of a sick person than it does of a well one, so those who can pay are required to do so. By the Compensation Act in the state of Virginia, workmen who are insured are cared for, the expense following the injury is looked after by the company for whom they work, so they are expected to give the name and address of the party for whom they work and tell how the accident occurred.

When assistance is asked and needed, no one is ever refused.

There is a class of people though that we have to refuse on account of our small building and our lack of funds. Those are chronic and incurable cases, whose relatives want to bring them in for an indefinite time not because they are expecting them to be cured, but because they are trouble some to take care of at home. So if we fill our building with these, which would be very easy to do, we would have no room to take in the ones we could cure.

Twenty Second Win

Yesterday afternoon the Virginia Orioles traveled to Washington and played in the New Palace Gym against the Warwicks who are considered Washingtons best in the junior class, only to come back to Alexandria with another marked down on the record book making it 22 out of 23 this season. The game was tight throughout, the final score being 12 to 10.

Lyons, Schoeni and Nowland starred for the winners but the all around team work of the "Flying Birds" bewildered their opponents, the Warwicks being unable to penetrate the Orioles defense for more than two field goals. All the Virginians baskets were two pointers pegged from difficult angles.

Summary

SEES REACTION AGAINST G. O. P.

Democratic Congressional Chairman Predicts Control of Congress

Representative Rouse, of Kentucky, Says Minority Will Make Gains and Redeem States Lost

Washington, Feb 6.—Alleging that business conditions throughout the country are "rotten" and worse than they were three months ago, Representative Arthur B. Rouse, of Kentucky, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, issued a statement last night asserting that the reaction against the Republican party is well under way and the Democratic campaign for the control of Congress is today one of rosy promise.

The statement of Chairman Rouse is virtually the opening gun in the approaching campaign for the control of Congress, Representative Rouse asserts that reports to Democratic headquarters here indicate discontent throughout all the country. Democratic campaign managers are trying to overrun Republican majorities in both Senate and House, and the Rouse statement is one of optimism.

In response to questions regarding the progress of the reorganiation of the Congressional Campaign Committee of party organizations in the several States, Chairman Rouse made this announcement: "We have about completed our organization in each State. Our committee includes in its membership a representative in Congress from every State in the Union that has Democratic representation in the national lawmaking body.

"There are now 23 States that are without Democratic representation in Congress. In all except five of these States I have appointed a prominent Democrat to represent the State on the committee and the organization will be completed within the next week. The committee will also have a woman representative in each State and about half of these appointments have been made."

"Are you receiving any reports on the political situation out in the State?" Mr. Rouse was asked, and he replied:

"Yes; a great many of them, and they are of the most favorable character, The reports that are coming from the Eeastern seaboard, through the Northern States and clear out to the Pacific Coast indicate that the people are not satisfied with the present Administration and are especially displeased with Congress because there has been a complete failure to redeem the promises of relief that were made during the campaign. Business conditions throughout the country are rotten, even worse than three months ago. The Emergency Tariff law, which was passed last summer, ostensibly to help the farmer, has been an absolute failure and is shown by the fact that wheat is selling at a lower price today than it did when the bill was approved by the President. The reports we have are that some of the farmers in the corn and wheat growing section of the country are using corn for fuel, which is a sad commentary on their condition."

Asked where he expects the Democrats to make gains this year in the Congressional election, he replied: "We will make gains in every State in the North, East and West and will redeem the districts we lost in the last election in Tennesee and Texas."

MONDAY

Monday (in old English, Monanlaeg), "moon's day," is a translation of the late Latin lunae dies, from which the French lundi is taken. In the Christian calendar it is the second day of the week.

Monday has been humorously canonized as St. Monday, the festival of cobblers, who seldom worked on Monday and were supposed not to know on which day St. Crispin's (their patron saint), festival occurred, save that it should be on a Monday and therefore celebrated each Monday in the year, to be certain to honor the day.

Collop Monday, in the north of England, is the Monday preceding Shrove Tuesday, so called in allusion to a dish of fried eggs, bacon and dried salt meat, called collops, taken preparatory to the Lenten fast.

In England Plough Monday is the Monday after Twelfth Day, the first Monday after Epiphany, in allusion to the fact that in medieval times the ploughmen had a fete day and went around the villages begging plough money.

In the event of a legal holiday falling upon Sunday it is the practice in the United States for banks and business houses to observe the Monday following.

According to suicide statistics in the United States, Monday is the day of the week on which most acts of self destruction are committed.

MAKE ARREST IN $100,000 DRUG THEFT

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Federal agents today arrested Jacob Levine, of Chicago, in connection, they said, with a $100,000 drug robbery in Philadelphia last week.

In searching Levine the Federal agents said they found the baggage check for a trunk containing $25,000 worth of narcotics, which was seized in New York on Friday. The drugs are said to be part of those which figured in the Philadelphia robbery.

Levine admitted ownership of the check, it was said, but claimed it was given to him by a stranger, who asked him to hold it.

CONFESSIONS OF AN ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 5.—Bootleg liquor soon will be transported to Petersburg in an airplane, according to an alleged member of the gentry, as he related the number of narrow escapes he and certain of his associates recently have had from the clutches of the law.

The recent snow hampered the work of the bootlegger, he de lared, because of telltale footprints. The most important setback, however, he declared, lies in the fact that sugar has to be carried such long distances into the woods.

"We are operating high-powered automobiles," he boasted, "and the police cannot catch us in thefr 'flivvers.'"

"It's a great game—if you don't weaken," was his parting shot.

WILL EXPLAIN WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Wisconsin Woman to Address Legislatures on Sex Equality's Success

Governors and Congressmen Give Their Indorsement of Workings of Law—Is In Operation In West

Washington, Feb. 5.—Legislators in Maryland, Virginia and other States will hear first hand from a Wisconsin woman how the woman's equal rights legislation works in her State, the headquarters of the National Woman's party announced here today.

The emissary is Miss Gena Thompson Secretary of the Wisconsin Women's Progressive League, who will appear tomorrow before a committee of the Virginia Senate at Richmond. The date for her visit to Annapolis has not been determined.

In her tour, which begins this week, she will endeavor to convince the legislators that the States ought to adopt a uniform law, preferably the Woman's Party bill now introduced in most of the Legislatures. The States she will visit are New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky and Mississippi.

Miss Thompson will take with her the indorsements of Governor Blaine of Wisconsin, other State officials and Wisconsin Congressmen, all of whom write favorably on the results of six months' operation of the Equal Rights law. This law, passed June 22, 1921, guarantees women equal rights with men in suffrage, freedom of contract, jury service, office holding, property rights, guardianship of children and in "all other respects."

The Wisconsin women left Washington for Richmond yesterday with Miss Anita Pollitzer, legislative secretary of the Woman's party. Her appearance at the Richmond capitol tomorrow will be her first public hearing upon this tour. Her next stop will be at Columbia, S. C., where the Legislature is now pending.

Governor Blaine in his recommendation said: "Our experience convinces us that the general enactment is in complete harmony with the Federal Amendment, and directly effective in establishing full equality of men and women before the law."

Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin wrote "I am in favor of all necessary legislation to secure complete political equality among women. I am in favor of equality in all other respects to the extent that there shall be no destruction of safeguards and protection justified by difference in sex, which have been secured through many years of struggle."

effect that he did not believe the four-Power treaty included the home land of Japan. It was thereafter certified that, contrary to the President's understanding, it had been specifically agreed among the delegats that the treaty did include the Jananese homeland.

When the treaty was criticised on this account, the Japanese themselves asked that their homeland be excluded and it later developed that the homeland was only included at the request of the British delegation for the purpose of avoiding offending the sensibilities of the British dominions of Australia and New Zealand.

Arthur B. Rouse, of Kentucky, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, is proceeding energetically with preparations for the vigorous capaign which the democrats expect to make this year to elect a controlling majority in Congress.

In response to a question as to the progress that is being made in reorganizing the congressional committee he said:

"We have about completed our organization in each state. Our committee includes in its membership a representative in congress from every state in the union that has democratic representation in the national law-making body. There are now twenty- three states that are without democratic representation in congress. In all except five of these states I have appointed a prominent democrat to represent the state on the committee and the organization will be completed within the next week. The committe will also have a woman representative in each state and about half of these appointments have been made."

"Are you receiving any reports on the political situation out in the States?"

"Yes, a great many of them and they are of the most favorable character. The reports that are coming from the eastern seaboard, through the northern states and clear out to the Pacific coast indicate that the people are not satisfied with the present administration and are especially displeased with Congress because there has been a complete failure to redeem the promises of relief that were being made during the campaign. Business conditions throughout the country are rotten, even worse than three months ago. The Emergency Tariff law which was passed last summer, ostensibly to help the farmer, has been an absolute failure, as is shown by the fact that wheat is selling at a lower price today than it did when the bill was approved by the president. The reports we have are that some of the armers in the corn and wheat growing section of the country are using corn for fuel, which is a sad commentary on their condition."

Asked where he expects the Democrats to make gains this year in the Congressional elections he replied; "We will make gains in every state in the north, east and west and will redeem the districts we lost in the last election in Tennessee and Texas."

Isaac Gregg.

POLICE COURT NOTES

Frank Ellmore, driver of a bus, today was fined $25 and costs in the police court, charged with passing an electric car while the car was discharging a passenger. He was cited to appear in court by Policeman Durrer.

Robert Arnold, charged with discharging a pistol in the street at at Prince and Royal streets, yesterday, was acquitted, he having a temporary permission to carry a pistol and at the time he was handing the weapon to another man to take to his home in Fairfax when he dropped it. He was taken in custody by Policeman Magner and Welker.

Louis and Ada Strother, colored, husband and wife, were charged with fighting. One blamed the other. The court acquitted the couple and placed them under a peace bond in the sum of $100 each for a period of one year. They were arrested by Policeman Morris.

TWO FUNERALS TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Maud Elizabeth Howard, who died Friday, were held this afternoon at Wheatley's mortuary chapel and conducted by Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the M. E. Church South. Burial was at Lincolnia, Fairfax County.

The funeral of Miss Rebecca Irvin, a former resident, who died in Washington, took place this morning from her late residence, 1763 Church street northwest, Washington and was conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith of St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Burial was in Christ Church cemetery this city.

Other Theatre Disasters

In a century theater disasters have taken a toll of thousands of lives.

Until the recent Knickerbocker Theater disaster, in Washington, fire has been the chief peril of the theatergoer. Modern construction, however, has greatly lessened the danger and in the United States only two great casualties have occurred in twenty years.

The death of more than 600 persons, when fire destroyed the Iroquois Theater, Chicago, in 1903, stands as the heaviest toll in this country.

A "false alarm" panic in Robinson's Theater, Cincinnati, in 1897, caused the death of 16 persons.

The first theater fire disaster of consequence in this country occurred in 1811, when 70 were killed at Richmond, Va.

Conway's Theater, Brooklyn, destroyed in 1876, brought death to 295 persons.

Among the theater disasters abroad the greatest loss of life was in the destruction of the Ring Theater, Vienna, when 700 were killed.

Among the major theater disasters in this country in a century were: Temple Theater, Philadelphia, 1888, when scores were killed. Central Theater, Philadelphia, 1891, in which 10 persons perished; Pikes Opera House, Cincinnati, 1893, scores killed; Yore's Opera House, Benton Harbor, Mich., 1897, 11 killed; Klondike Theatre, Milwaukee, 1901, 11 killed; City Theater, Boyertown, Pa., 1908, 160 killed.

Among the foreign theater disasters were: Karlsruhe Theater, St. Petersburg, 1847, 200 killed: Lehman's Theater, St. Petersburg, 1881, 300 killed; Opera Comique, Paris, 1887, 20 killed; Banquet Theater, Oporto, Portugal, 200 killed; Charity Bazaar, Paris, 1897, 300 killed; Flores Theater, Acapulco, Mexico, 1906, 250 killed; Film Show, Bologoie, Russia, 100 killed.

Basketball Games

The regular meeting of the Dreadnaught Athletic Club will be held at 7.30 tonight in the office of Dr. T. B. Cochran. All who are interested in baseball for the coming season are requested to attend.

SATURDAY, FEB. 5, 1814.

The Enemy in The Potomac.

It is ascertained that a large British force, consisting of the Dragon 74, two brigs and many other smaller vessels, are now off Blackstone's Island, about sixty or seventy miles from the heat of government. Their object is probably nothing more than to obtain supplies of water and fresh provisions, and to effect it, the scenes of pillage and of plunder which we have lately witnessed upon our defenceless shores, will be revived. Notwithstanding the favorable opportunities which our government has had since the fall, to provide some means of defense for the distressed inhabitants upon the borders of the Potomac; not a single measure of prudence or precaution has been adopted. By throwing up temporary fortifications on some of the many strong points upon the banks of the river, the enemy's small vessels might have been effectually prevented from prosecuting their marauding schemes, and our fellow citizens on the Potomac saved from the ruin which now threatens them.

THE ENDLESS CAVERNS AT NEW MARKET

The cave wonders of the Shenandoah Valley, in Virginia, have recently received a notable addition by the opening of a labyrinth of underground rooms and passageways at a place 4 miles south of New Market, in Rockingham County These caves have been known since 1878 but they have only recently been made accessible and adequately lighted, and they are now open to the public under the attractive name of the Endless Caverns. The caverns are near the Valley Pike, one of the best automobile roads in the country. and the 2 miles of new road required to reach them is being improved, so that automobile parties may reach the caverns in comfort at any season of the year Already 30 rooms may be seen by visitors, and others, it is said, will be opened as fast as they can be made passable and wired for electric lights. The floor of the rooms and passages are dry, and visitors can see all the interesting features without change of clothing or protection from dropping water. The roof is almost everywhere studded with stalactites, the smallest consisting of single stone "icicles," each no longer than a lady's finger; the largest forming great clusters that resemble huge pipe organs or the fluted folds of some rich drapery. On the floor there are countless stalagmites of various forms that suggest to the fancy troops of grotesquely shaped dwarfs and gnomes.

Many Rooms And Some Surprises.

Most of the features mentioned are common to the caverns of the region, but there are two that give to the Endless Caverns a special charm and beauty that linger in the memory long after the more common features are forgotten One of these is the seemingly endless succession of spacious rooms connected by narrow, sinuous passages, and the other is Diamond Lake, a gem that forms a fitting climax to the whole series of wonders that may be seen all the way from the mouth of the caverns to the farthest end.

The caverns afford a succession of surprises to one who passes from room to room through the circuitous passages. In places the narrow way seems to circle about, so that the visitor expects to return to the chamber he left a moment before, but the blaze of light shows him a totally different picture. One chamber resembles a ball room, another suggests an Oriental palace, and still another calls to our fancy the land of fairies. This "fairy land" is particularly beautiful, as its roof and walls are covered with a filigree-like network of miniature stalactites that weirdly suggest bands of fairies dancing in the moonlight. The change of scene from room to room holds the visitor's interest constantly and makes him eager to see what new wonders lie beyond.

Diamond Lake

Diamond Lake is in a room at the extremity of the accessible portion of the caverns, and the views in the other rooms only lead up to this paramount scene. The lake is a shallow pool of water that lies in a horizontal cleft in the massive limestone, scarcely 20 inches in height but stretching indefinitely on either side and backward from the point of view. Into this mirror like pool slender stalacites hang from the roof, every one coated with snow white crystals of lime. To see this pool in all its beauty, the visitors are lined up in front of it in total darkness—and darkness here is the very "blackness of darkness"—then, suddenly the cleft is flooded with light from concealed electric bulbs. Under the strong illumination and the play of different colors the crystals blaze and sparkle like the precious gems that studded the walls of Aladdin's wondrous cave, and the visitor then realizes that the name Diamond Lake is singularly appropriate. The lights are then shifted so that he sees only the crystal studded roof mirrored in the still water of the pool, and this view is even more dazzingly beautiful than the direct one. Altogether this is a fitting climax to the other wonders of the Endless Caverns.

Nature's Slow But Sure Work

These caverns, as well as the many others in the Shenandoah Valley, are, according to M. R. Campbell, of the United States Geological Survey, excellent examples of the "unhasting yet unresting" manner in which the work of nature is carried on, whether at the surface or deep down in subterranean passages, away from the light of day. It is obvious that water is the agent that has dissolved the lime stone rock. Much of the water that falls as rain or snow on this region finds its way down into the rocks through the numerous sinkholes that do the surface or through other openings, and as the limestone is soluble the water eats our channels and pasageways through the solid rock. The process is extremely slow, but as it has been at work for ages it has produced great chambers, such as those seen in the Endless Caverns. Each drop of water dissolves some of the limestone, but it can not carry off all the lime that it dissolves and some is therefore deposited on the roof from which the drop is suspended. In time the material deposited by many drops of water grows into the form of an icicle—a stalactite. Similarly lime is deposited on the floor where the drop of water falls, and in time is built into an inverted "icicle"—a stalagmite. The remaining lime is carried off in solution by the water and finally discharged into Shenandoah River, making the water of that stream hard, or limy.

Land Has Been Uplifted

The Endless Caverns present abundant evidence that in former times streams of water flowed along many of the passages where now the floor is perfectly dry. What has caused the streams to abandon their former course? The answer to this question is not easy, but this abandonment was probably due to an uplift of the land, which made it possible for the surface rivers to cut far below upland level the deep trenches in which they are flowing at the present time. This lowering of the surface streams provided a lower outlet for the cavern streams, which have consequently abandoned their higher courses for others deeper down and now out of sight. If the caverns are explored far enough some of these subterranan streams may perhaps be discovered.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

The Health Game and the Junior Red Cross

Improvement of the health of the children of Austria and Jugo-Slavia is to be undertaken as a means of launching the Junior Red Cross in those countries. This is the result of the successful experiment carried on for two years in Czecho-Slovakia by the Junior American Red Cross. With the splendid achievement in the latter country before them, officials of the League of Red Cross Societies and far-seeing men and women of Austria and Jugo-Slavia urged the American Red Cross through its Junior organization to launch the "Health Game" in these two countries. Accordingly an appropriation of $1,500 has been set aside for the work in Austria and $5,000 is to be used in the same work in Jugo-Slavia. Trained organizers have been sent into both countries and the preliminary work is now now well under way.

This "Health Game" which the American Red Cross is teaching the children of Europe to play is organized in the schools. Literature is distributed which makes clear the necessity for exercise, breathing fresh air and the plentiful use of soap and water. The pupils are given credits for carrying out the regulations which call for sleeping with open windows, bathing at regular intervals, clean teeth, face and hands, and neatness in dress. Provision is also made for properly accredition acts of unselfish service for others.

In both Austria and Jugo-Slavia the work that has been undertaken for the children is to be carried out along much the same lines that were followed in Czecho-Slovakia where several thousand children were restored to health and given a more cheerful outlook on life. It was the success of this work that resulted in the organization in that country last spring of a most efficient Junior Red Cross.

Gave Their Last Pennies

In a little school down near the Rio Grande River in the great State of Texas, all of the pupils are Mexicans. One day they heard their teacher tell of the work of the school-girls and boys of the country through an organization, the Junior American Red Cross. They immediately asked that their school be enrolled under the Junior banner, "I serve," and that they receive the Red Cross magazine, The Junior Red Cross News. Soon the preliminary steps toward such enrolment were under way and the children began making their contributions to their Junior Service Fund. One little boy gave his only fifty cents; another contributed six cents, money he made picking a turkey, another gave a penny, his last one, in the name of his sister; while another boy sold his beloved marbles for a small sum so that he might have a part in the work. These Mexican children are preparing for a busy winter and are eagerly seizing upon opportunities for acts of unselfish service for others.

One St. Valentine's Day

The wind howled fiercely around the Marine Hospital and drove great sheets of sleet and snow against the windows of the ward. The white roofs outside seemed just a dreary continuation of the rows of white beds, whose occupants were bitterly denouncing the blizzard that had kept visitors away for several days.

"And here it is Valentine's Day too!" exclaimed one wounded marine, struck with a new grievance. "Ain't this a hunk of a Valentine's Day!"

"Remember what fun Valentine's Day was when you were a kid? asked another. "I can see those big red hearts and lacy valentines now. Maybe somebody in the town will send us some."

"Aw, suppose they do," grumbled the first, "they'd just deliver them by the wholesale—nothing personal about that sort of thing. What's that noise? Sounds like kids coming!"

There was a sound of pattering footsteps and two little boys appeared in the doorway of the ward. The red of their caps and sweaters and mittens was frosted with snow and their rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes seemed to bring in a whiff of the refreshing outside world. They carried two big baskets piled high with envelopes and red, heart-shaped boxes.

"Hello," said the bigger boy somewhat shyly. "We're from the Junior Red Cross and we've brought you some Valentine things. Which one is William Carter?"

The surpised William answered promptly and was presented with a pretty Valentine, and a red heart filled with home-made candy. Best of all on both box and Valentine his name was written in full.

The little boy went on calling out names till every man in the ward had his valentine and candy.

"My Valentine's got a letter in it written to me by a kid!" shouted William Carter. "Ain't that great? Listen ——"

But his attempt to read his letter was drowned in a chorus of similar attempts, for every patient had a personal letter.

Doctors and nurses and orderlies came in to enjoy the fun, and the general uproar was stopped only long enough to give three hearty cheers for the Junior Red Cross whose thoughtfulness had brightened their day.

Cured of Desire to Be Female Crusoe

Mrs. William Meng

A year on a lonely South Sea Island, a thousand miles from the nearest inhabited land, with cocoanuts and copra for breakfast, dinner and supper, has cured Mrs. William Meng of wanting to be a female Robinson Crusoe. Together with her husband and a Hawaiian boy, she went to the isle to establish a trading company. Business was bad, and they went bankrupt. A navy boat came to their rescue.

"Never again!" says Mrs. Meng.

You've done it yourself—sometimes.

WIFE HIS POLITICAL RIVAL

Town Clerkship of Winsted, Conn., Will Stay in Family

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 5—No matter which way the election goes in Richmond, Mass., tomorrow the town clerkship wil ibe retained by the Dorr family. The rival candidates are Herbert A. Dorr and his wife, Mabel Dorr. There are 227 voters in the litle Berkshire town. "I am eligible and I am qualified—that is my only platform," said Mrs. Dorr today.

"There is no trouble between my husband and I. It is simply a matter of principle. I want to learn the attitude of Richmond voters toward women holding public office.

"My husband is very gallant and says he is going to vote for me. I also have heard him urge some of his men friends over the telephone to support me. I expect to get the vote of quite a number of men who believe in fair play and equal rights of women."

Alice—"Have you written to that wonderful man you became engaged to at the seaside?"
